

NCRA Policies and Procedures

Introduction to Policies and Procedures Manual

The NCRA Board of Directors supports and advocates transparency in its governance activities, consistency in its exercise of governance duties, and continuity and efficiency in the operations of the association. In order to promote good business practices and responsible governance, it has created this Policy and Procedures Manual and makes it available to the membership on the NCRA website and in PDF format.

Policies and Procedures

A policy statement presents the position, thinking or philosophy that governs actions on a particular subject. Policies are meant to answer the general questions “what” and “why.”

Where policy is dictated by the NCRA Constitution and Bylaws, reference to the applicable language is provided. No Policy or Procedure may contravene the law of the District of Columbia, NCRA Articles of Incorporation, NCRA Constitution and Bylaws, and Robert’s Rules of Order Newly Revised (RONR), in that order.

Policy wording is intentionally formal, broad and general in terms. At the same time, it ideally should be concise, brief and easily grasped.

A procedure statement provides more detailed or specific instruction on areas addressed in policy. A procedure defines and specifies the necessary steps for accomplishing a given task. Procedures are meant to answer the questions “how” and “when.”

Procedures should be worded in clear, precise, and specific terms to provide the reader with all the necessary details and information to make a sound decision in a particular situation, consistent with prior actions and policy. Wording may be more informal than in policy statements, with the emphasis on clarity and complete coverage of the subject. As such, procedure statements are often longer than the policy statement with which they are associated.

Appendices

Specialized policies and extensive, detailed procedures are documented in other sources. (For example: The NCRA Code of Professional Ethics, with its supporting “General Guidelines,” “Complaint Procedures,” and “Public Advisory Opinions,” and the CASE General Requirements and Minimum Standards (GRMS) manual.) These authorities will be included as appendices to this Policy and Procedures Manual and remain subject to approval by the Board of Directors.

Revision and Maintenance

The Policies and Procedures Committee shall review a minimum of one-third of the Policies and Procedures Manual annually and reaffirm, amend, or rescind each item contained therein. Upon the Policies and Procedures Committee’s completion of its task, the Committee shall present its recommendations to the NCRA Board of Directors for final approval. Under authority granted by Article

XIX, Section 1(a) of the NCRA Constitution and Bylaws, "The Board of Directors shall be the final authority on the interpretation of the Constitution and Bylaws." The Board has final authority to determine whether a particular Policy or Procedure is in conflict with the Constitution and Bylaws and the obligation to correct any Policy or Procedure to conform it to the requirements of the bylaws. The draft of the Policies and Procedures with changes incorporated will be sent to the Board for final approval.

NCRA executive staff shall be charged with maintaining a master copy of this Policies and Procedures Manual and its appendices, reflecting any changes or additions made as a result of Board or membership action within two weeks of any change.

Note on Custom

A particular practice may sometimes come to be followed as a matter of established custom so that it is treated practically as if it were prescribed by a rule. If there is no contrary provision in RONR or written rules of NCRA, the established custom should be adhered to unless the Board of Directors, by a majority vote, agrees in a particular instance to do otherwise. However, if a customary practice is or becomes in conflict with RONR or any written rule, and a Point of Order citing the conflict is raised at any time, the custom falls to the ground, and the conflicting provision in RONR or written rule must thereafter be followed. If it is then desired to follow the former practice, a special rule of order (or, in appropriate circumstances, a standing rule or a bylaw provision) can be added or amended.

SECTION 2: CODE OF PROFESSIONAL ETHICS AND CONDUCT

NCRA Code of Professional Ethics

The following are the preambles related to the Code of Professional Ethics. Please refer to the standalone COPE policy for complete details.

Member Preamble

The mandatory Code of Professional Ethics defines the ethical relationship the public, the bench, and the bar have a right to expect from a Member. The Code sets out the conduct of the Member when dealing with the user of reporting services and acquaints the user, as well as the Member, with guidelines established for professional behavior. The Guidelines for Professional Practice, on the other hand, are goals which every Member should strive to attain and maintain. Members are urged to comply with the Guidelines and must adhere to local, state and federal rules and statutes. It should be noted that these guidelines do not exhaust the moral and ethical considerations with which the Member should conform, but provide the framework for the practice of reporting. Not every situation a Member may encounter can be foreseen, but a Member should always adhere to fundamental ethical principles. By complying with the Code of Professional Ethics and Guidelines for Professional Practice, Members maintain their profession at the highest level.

Advisory Opinion Procedures

Any Member in good standing may submit to the Committee on Professional Ethics a request for an Advisory Opinion. Advisory Opinions shall consist of (1) Private Advisory Opinions and (2) Public Advisory Opinions.

- The Committee shall keep confidential the identity of the person or persons making the request and the identity of those names in the request, unless otherwise directed by the Board of Directors.
- The Committee's response to requests for Private Advisory Opinions shall be within the limitations of the information received by the Committee. Additional information may be requested by the Committee, if needed.

Public Advisory Opinions

The Committee may from time to time recommend publication of Public Advisory Opinions which illuminate one or more of the provisions of the Code of Professional Ethics. These opinions may be based on facts derived from requested Private Advisory Opinions, deleting reference to names or places, or on an assumed state of facts.

Review

The Board of Directors may review any Private or Public Advisory Opinion on its own motion and adopt, modify, or reject it in whole or in part. Please visit website "Professional Resources" for complete list of COPE Advisory Opinions.

Captioners Code of Professional Ethics

Advertising Complaint Process: Alleged Code of Professional Ethics (COPE) Violations

Definitions

"Advertise," "Advertising" and/or "Advertisement shall include all paid advertising or promotional opportunities offered by NCRA, whether in print or online, including any and all display advertising, classified advertising, event and other sponsorships, advertising inserts, flyers, or promotional items, etc.

"Advertiser" shall include any individual or entity purchasing Advertising from NCRA, regardless of whether they are eligible for or hold NCRA membership.

Advertising Agreements and Scope

As a condition of advertising, all NCRA Advertising agreements shall include an affirmative agreement by the Advertiser that it will abide by NCRA's Advertising and Sponsorship Policy and that it supports the purposes and objectives of NCRA and will comply with the NCRA Code of Professional Ethics.

Actions in violation of COPE need not be apparent or referenced in the content of the Advertising itself to form a basis for complaint. A proven violation of COPE by the Advertiser is sufficient for disciplinary action, including limitations on Advertising privileges, regardless of whether the violative behavior is referenced or discussed in the content of the Advertisement.

Complaints of violations of COPE by the Advertiser will only be considered for activities occurring from the time of signing the Advertising agreement forward. Complaints based on past activities without evidence that these violative practices have continued will be dismissed.

Complaint Process

The NCRA Advertising Complaint Procedures* (below) provides the same due process and evidentiary standards as the current COPE process:

- Step 1: A formal, written complaint that the advertiser has violated the Code as well as documentary evidence substantiating the claim must be filed with the Committee on Professional Ethics.
- Step 2: The accused entity will have the opportunity to respond to the allegations.
- Step 3: The Committee on Professional Ethics will then consider the merits of the allegation and issue a written finding.
- Step 4: If there is a finding of violation and a recommendation for the temporary or permanent loss of NCRA Advertising privileges, such decision shall not become final until it is sustained by the NCRA Board of Directors.
- Step 5: The decision of the NCRA Board of Directors whether or not to sustain is final.

Sanctions:

If an Advertiser is held in violation of the Code, based upon the severity of the violation, sanctions may include but are not limited to:

- A cautionary letter, warning or statement of advice; or
- A permanent or temporary loss of NCRA Advertising privileges

Advertising privileges normally will not be restricted or impinged upon unless a formal complaint has been filed and a final finding of violation has been made. That is, Advertisers usually may continue to advertise while a complaint is pending. Advertising privileges may be suspended pending the outcome of a complaint; however, in situations where the Executive Director of NCRA, in consultation with NCRA's President and legal counsel, determine in their discretion that the nature of the proposed violation is so blatant and serious that immediate action is required.

Advertising complaint procedures for nonmembers

The following procedures shall be followed in instituting and resolving complaints that an Advertiser of the Association (who is not a member of the Association) has violated the Code of Professional Ethics. Complaints against Advertisers who are Members of the Association are handled under the Code of Professional Ethics Complaint Procedures.

The complaint must also contain the complainant's consent for the Association's disclosure of the complaint to the Advertiser complained against, the members of the Committee of Professional Ethics, and Association directors, officers and appropriate staff.

3. Despite the satisfaction of all the requirements of Paragraph A.2, the NCRA Executive Director, the Chair of the Committee and a NCRA staff liaison to the Committee may determine, in their sole discretion, not to send the complaint to the full Committee if the complaint (a) fails to state grounds upon which the Committee may recommend action; or (b) is beyond the scope or authority of the Committee; (c) or the matter can be resolved informally through discussions with the Advertiser. If the complaint involves purely business practice issues or ethics and business practice issues as determined by the Committee, the complaint will be referred first to alternative dispute resolution to address those issues outside the scope of the Committee. After the business practice issues have been resolved, the complainant may file an ethics complaint with the Committee.

If the complaint is not sent to the full Committee for the reasons set forth above, the NCRA Executive Director shall inform the complainant in writing of such fact and the reasons why the full Committee will not consider the complaint. The complainant may then make a request to the full Committee to review the decision not to send the complaint to the full Committee at its next scheduled meeting. The Committee may, at that point, decide to consider a complaint that had been previously dismissed.

4. Once a complaint is accepted for processing, NCRA will send all written communications to the person making the complaint and the Advertiser complained against by certified mail, overnight express courier or hand delivery. The Executive Director shall forward a copy of the complaint to the Advertiser complained against, along with a copy of these complaint procedures, and copies of the signed Advertising Agreement, the Advertising and Sponsorship Policy, the Constitution and Bylaws, and the Code of Professional Ethics, and request that the Advertiser respond to the complaint in writing within thirty (30) days from the date of the letter of notification. A copy of any response received shall be forwarded to all other parties.
5. NCRA shall keep confidential all records, documents, files, and evidence pertaining to a complaint, and proceedings will be closed to the public, except as may be necessary for compliance with these complaint procedures or to take ancillary action with respect thereto, or unless ordered otherwise by a court or agency of competent jurisdiction.

Any party initiating a complaint shall agree in writing not to disclose all or part of any record, document, file, evidence, the decision of the Committee, or any decision of the Board as well as to indemnify and hold harmless the Association from any claim or action that may result from such improper disclosure. Furthermore, any party violating these confidentiality provisions shall be subject to sanctions under these procedures.

Should an Advertiser cancel his or her Advertising Agreement with NCRA while an ethics complaint is pending, the Committee shall complete the processing of the complaint as specified in these procedures.

B. Proceedings by the committee on professional ethics

1. When the thirty-day (30) period has elapsed, the Executive Director shall forward the complaint, documents submitted, and the response, if any, to the Committee on Professional Ethics. The Committee on Professional Ethics may reach its decision based on the complaint and the response, if any, or may ask the Executive Director to obtain additional information. The Committee may also grant an opportunity for the person making the complaint and the Advertiser complained of to be heard either in person, through legal counsel or in a format agreed to by all parties. If the Committee determines there are disputed issues of fact that are material to its decision, it may grant any party an opportunity to present relevant information, including documents and witnesses, and an opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses called by any party. The Committee shall be the judge of the relevance and materiality of any information offered, and conformity to legal rules of evidence shall not be necessary.
2. The Committee shall thereafter prepare a written decision containing its findings of fact and conclusions. It may issue a cautionary letter, warning, or statement of advice to the Advertiser. The Committee may on a case-by-case basis require Advertisers to take one or more ethics seminars. The Advertiser will be informed of this requirement in their decision letter.

Alternatively, the Committee may decide that the Advertiser be denied the opportunity to advertise for up to one (1) year in any Association advertising venues, or may order that the Advertiser be permanently banned from advertising. Such a decision shall not become effective unless it is sustained by the Board of Directors.

3. The Committee shall inform all parties as to the status of the complaint within ninety (90) days after the case is received by the Committee from the Executive Director. If a hearing is scheduled, the Committee shall render its decision within sixty (60) days after the hearing is completed. Notwithstanding the above, the Committee may suspend the processing of the complaint pending the outcome of any related administrative, civil, or criminal proceedings, or for any other reason deemed appropriate by the Committee to ensure fairness or due process for all parties.

C. Appeals

1. The Executive Director shall promptly send a copy of the decision of the Committee on Professional Ethics to the person making the complaint and the Advertiser complained against.
2. A decision to issue a cautionary letter, warning or statement of advice shall be final.
3. If there is a recommendation for a permanent or temporary loss of NCRA Advertising privileges, the Advertiser shall have thirty (30) days from the date of the letter notifying all parties of the Committee's decision in which to provide any additional information to be considered by the NCRA Board of Directors.
4. If the Advertiser provides any additional information, a letter shall be sent to the person making the complaint with an opportunity to respond thereto within an additional fifteen (15) days.
5. When the time periods for submitting additional information have expired, the Executive Director shall forward to the Board of Directors all documentation relating to the matter. The Board may decide the matter on the basis of these documents, or may grant a request for oral argument made by any party, in person or through their attorney.
6. The decision by the Board of Directors whether or not to sustain the decision for there to be a permanent or temporary loss of NCRA Advertising privileges shall be final.

To avoid having any expression of personal opinion(s) misunderstood, if a director or officer is asked about candidate preferences in a public setting (for example, while making a presentation at a state association meeting), that director or officer shall limit his or her response to restating the standing Board policy, which prohibits endorsing candidates in elections.

Endorsement Activities & Guidelines for Campaigning While on Rep Assignments

Board Endorsement Activities

Individual board members are encouraged to submit names of qualified persons to be forwarded to the nominating committee for consideration as possible candidates for the Board of Directors. Board members shall limit submissions to the name of the potential candidate only. Board members are not allowed to submit recommendations for the Distinguished Service Award, NCRA Fellows, or NCRF Trustees.

Guidelines for Campaigning While on Rep Assignments

When a director or officer who is a candidate in an NCRA election is attending a meeting at NCRA's expense and representing the association in an official capacity (e.g., is the NCRA rep at an affiliated association meeting), the following guidelines on engaging in campaign activities apply:

Active campaigning is NOT permissible. Active campaigning includes:

- Incorporating campaign messages into formal presentations to the conference.
- Wearing buttons or hats or other campaign paraphernalia containing campaign messages.
- Personally and directly distributing campaign materials (flyers, buttons, etc.) during state conference events (i.e., personally handing out flyers or buttons at a state conference reception or seminar).

Passive campaigning IS permissible, provided it is conducted with common sense and discretion to distance and separate from your roles as a candidate and as an official representative doing NCRA business. You are representing the association; this is not a campaigning opportunity.

Permissible, passive campaigning includes:

- Distributing campaign material (flyers, buttons, etc.) wherever other flyers or promotional literature are being distributed (e.g., at literature tables or as tote bag inserts, whether paid or complimentary, if such distribution options are provided by the conference organizers).
- Allowing posters to be displayed in areas provided for this purpose by the conference organizers or paid advertising where provided by the state association.

- If publicly asked, as a candidate, for your position on an issue, it is preferable to defer an answer to a private conversation, preferably after the conference.

These restrictions do NOT apply to candidates in an NCRA election (including candidates currently serving as an NCRA officer or director) who are attending the meeting in an individual capacity and at their own expense (i.e., not as the official NCRA rep to a state conference.)

Fundraising Policy

1. Each governing board (NCRA, NCRF and NCRA PAC) shall independently establish for itself a clear and specific statement of its own expectations of its own board members' financial support of the entity upon whose board they sit.
 - a. That statement shall be shared with all persons considering service on those boards prior to the formal nomination process.
2. It shall be an expectation of service that all NCRA Board members shall contribute annually to NCRF in an amount of their own, private determination. It shall also be an expectation of service that all NCRA Board members consider a contribution annually to NCRA PAC in an amount of their own, private determination, subject to existing employment limitations.
 - a. This expectation shall be communicated to all persons considering service on the NCRA Board prior to the formal nomination process.
3. Information on all fundraising activities (whether on-going campaigns or periodic, event-based solicitations), describing opportunities to contribute, shall be shared in writing with members of the three governing boards and staff liaisons.

JCR Purpose Statement

JCR

The JCR: the Journal of Court Reporting has two complementary purposes: to communicate the activities, goals and mission of its publisher, the National Court Reporters Association; and, simultaneously, to seek out and publish diverse information and views on matters significantly related to the information/court reporting profession. All opinions expressed herein are strictly those of the authors or advertisers unless they are specifically identified as NCRA policy.

Mailing List Policy and Rental Agreement

Rental of a mailing list is limited to the promotion of educational opportunities. Mailing lists within a state are included in seminar evaluation fees for both affiliated and nonaffiliated groups.

For lists outside of an immediate state or region, the same rate will be charged to affiliates and nonaffiliates (a minimum of $100 per order). However, NCRA may exercise discretion in determining whether a requesting organization is of sufficient size and the program is of sufficient interest to warrant providing mailing list(s) outside the immediate state/region.

NCRA will employ strict member-privacy guidelines regarding opt-out requests including, but not limited to, an internal process of removing from rental lists any member who has expressed to NCRA the wish to opt-out of any or all mailings. Mailing lists are distributed in an Excel format with name and address upon receipt of payment and the NCRA Mailing List Agreement.

National Court Reporters Foundation

The slate of nominees to serve as NCRF Trustees will be presented to the NCRA Board of Directors by the Chair of the NCRF Nominating Committee and/or the NCRF Chair in person, either live or via audio or videoconference for the NCRA Board's consideration.

Should the NCRA Board of Directors take under consideration any action that would affect the governance of NCRF, the NCRF Trustees will be notified prior to any vote on such action and will be allowed to give input toward any action from NCRF's viewpoint.

Product Endorsement Policy

The National Court Reporters Association ("NCRA") as an entity does not certify, rate, endorse or otherwise promote any products or services except by action of the Board of Directors.

As a general matter, directors, officers, staff and other current "officials" may endorse or promote products or services of their own choice, provided that (1) they make clear that they are acting in their personal capacity and not in their official capacity or on behalf of NCRA; and (2) they take all reasonable efforts to ensure that the vendor does not suggest, in written materials or otherwise, any official connection or endorsement by NCRA.

Notwithstanding the general rule stated above, NCRA directors, officers, staff and other current "officials" may appear in vendor advertising and serve as speakers at vendor booths as long as NCRA is not paying for related expenses; including but not limited to lodging expenses, meals, airfare and transportation and no NCRA titles are used or displayed.

For their part, vendors shall comply with the foregoing endorsement rules in connection with their sales and marketing activities. Furthermore, with respect to conferences and other NCRA-sponsored events, vendors shall comply with the NCRA Exhibitor Event Guidelines*.

SECTION 4: BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Board of Directors Standards of Ethical Conduct

The Board of Directors of the National Court Reporters Association is committed to observing and promoting the highest standards of ethical conduct in the performance of their responsibilities on the Board. All Board members pledge to accept these standards as a minimum guideline for ethical conduct and shall:

Accountability

1. Abide in all respects by the NCRA Code of Professional Ethics and all other rules and regulations of the Association (including but not limited to the Association's Articles of Incorporation, and Constitution and Bylaws) and will ensure that their registered membership in the Association remains in good standing at all times.
2. Review all information and materials sent in connection with Board business and attend the meetings of the Board, the Board committees, and Board liaison appointments to which appointment is accepted.
3. Fully disclose, at the earliest opportunity, any information that may result in a perceived or actual conflict of interest and act in accordance with the NCRA Conflict of Interest policy.
4. Exercise reasonable care, good faith and due diligence in the Association's affairs.
5. Fully disclose, at the earliest opportunity, information of fact that would have significance in board decision-making.
6. Remain accountable for prudent fiscal management of the Association.

Professional Responsibilities

7. Exercise extreme care in all oral or written statements and personal speaking engagements to separate expression of personal opinion or belief from communications carrying the color of authority of the Association. Further, position/title on the Board will not be used when expressing a personal opinion unless acting within one's capacity and duties as a Board member and representing the Board and the Association's position on such issue. A disclaimer shall be made indicating that the board member is appearing in a private/personal capacity and not as an NCRA representative. This disclaimer does not relieve you of your duty to be bound by the Board Standards of Ethical Conduct.
8. Refrain from discussing outside of the meeting room individual differences and opinions about Board and Board Committee decisions.
9. Strive to develop, encourage and uphold the highest standards of personal and professional conduct among one's colleagues and the NCRA membership as a whole.
10. Exercise the powers vested for the good of all members and the Association itself rather than for personal benefit.

11. Avoid situations which may be improper or may give the appearance of impropriety.

Confidential Information

12. A Board Member shall not use NCRA materials or assets to inure to their personal or professional use or benefit.
13. Respect the confidentiality of information acquired through Board service.
14. Maintain diligent and alert as to what information learned during Board service can or should be shared with others.
15. Except as the Board of Directors may otherwise require or as otherwise required by law, no Board member shall share, copy, reproduce, transmit, divulge or otherwise disclose any confidential information related to the affairs of the Association, and each member of the Board will uphold the strict confidentiality of meetings and other deliberations and communications of the Board of Directors.
16. "Confidential information" includes but is not limited to discussions in Executive Sessions and information on employees (including compensation); except to the extent that this information is publicly available (such as on the IRS Form 990 and the annual audit report).

Collaboration and Cooperation

17. Exhibit and maintain a professional level of courtesy, respect and objectivity in all matters related to Association business, including but not limited to Board meetings, assignments, committee work, interactions with other Board members, interactions with members, recognizing that appointment to the Board is a privilege bestowed by one's colleagues to serve the membership and the mission of the Association.
18. Respect the diversity of opinions as expressed or acted upon by any member or group of members.
19. Promote collaboration, cooperation and partnership among NCRA members.

Former Board Members

20. All standards of conduct shall remain important and binding even after an Officer or Board member completes their service. It is expected that Officers and Board members will remain ambassadors of NCRA for life and shall continue to uphold the standards set forth above. With respect to Paragraph 7, it is understood that the views of former Officers and Board members may change, but in no event shall a former Officer or Board member use their former position/title to support any personal opinion that is contrary to the purposes of the association (such as by promoting alternative reporting methods as superior to verbatim stenographic reporting technologies). Any such former Officer or Board member that does so may be asked to cease using their former position/title or, depending on the circumstances, the Board of Directors may seek to revoke any honors, titles, and/or membership in the Association as outlined in Article III, Section 13 (a) of the Constitution and Bylaws. Officers and Board members agree to accept this commitment and accept such sanctions in addition to any remedies provided by the Constitution and Bylaws. Each Officer or Board member agrees to such action as a condition of their service.

This policy will be reviewed by the Board and signed by each officer and director as a separate document.

Board Standards of Ethical Conduct Complaint Procedures

The Board Standards of Ethical Conduct ("Board Standards") is intended to provide guidance and support for the Directors and Officers of NCRA and is not intended to be punitive. Should an allegation be made that a Director or Officer currently serving on the NCRA Board of Directors has violated the Board Standards, reasonable attempts shall first be made to resolve the matter informally and collaboratively, and in a positive and supportive manner, with the participation of all Directors and Officers, including the Director or Officer complained against. Sanctions against a Director or Officer shall only be considered as a last resort.

The following procedures ("the Procedures") shall be followed in instituting and resolving formal complaints that a Director or Officer currently serving on the NCRA Board of Directors ("Board") has violated the Board Standards. These same procedures also shall apply to any complaint against a former Officer or Director against whom the complaint is made to the extent practicable.

These Procedures do not apply to any complaint that a Director or Officer has violated NCRA's general Code of Professional Ethics ("COPE"), state law and any other legal or ethical requirements that may apply to the Director or Officer as a Member of NCRA or as reporter unless the alleged activity also violates the Board Standards. Accordingly, any allegations that a Director or Officer has violated COPE shall be referred to the Committee on Professional Ethics. Likewise, any complaint that a Director or Officer has violated any state law or rule shall be brought before the appropriate state authorities.

These Procedures shall only be utilized if an attempt to reach an informal and collaborative resolution is insufficient or deemed by the Board to be inappropriate given the severity of the allegation(s).

As a general rule, once these Procedures have commenced, neither the complainant nor the Director or Officer that is the subject of the complaint shall participate in any of the Board's deliberations regarding said complaint. Depending upon the circumstances of a particular complaint and the severity of the sanctions that are being considered, the Board may allow greater participation by the parties.

"Executive Director" refers to the Executive Director or his or her designated representative.

The Board shall be the judge of the relevance and materiality of any information offered, and conformity to legal rules of evidence shall not be necessary.
7. The Board shall thereafter prepare a written decision containing its findings of fact and conclusions. If the Board finds that a violation has occurred, it may issue a private reprimand, a public reprimand or (in the case of an Officer) may suspend or remove the Officer from their position on the Board.
8. Sanctions imposed by the Board shall be determined by a simple majority vote of the Board, except that removal of an Officer

SECTION 6: LEGAL REQUIREMENTS

Antitrust Policy

Covered individuals are required to review, sign and return the following antitrust compliance statement.

OBLIGATIONS OF ASSOCIATION OFFICERS, DIRECTORS, COMMITTEE CHAIRS, AND COMMITTEE MEMBERS UNDER THE ANTITRUST LAWS

This is written to provide a broad, summary description of the obligations you have under the antitrust laws as an officer, director, committee chair, or committee member of the National Court Reporters Association. It is furnished to you pursuant to the requirements of the Constitution and Bylaws. Its purpose is not to provide legal advice, but simply to indicate the kinds of activities and discussions that may create questions under the antitrust laws and accordingly must be avoided.

These guidelines must be observed at all times, in formal Association meetings and events as well as in informal discussions and conferences arising out of, or relating to, Association activities. They apply, for example, when you attend a state association meeting as a representative of the Association. In case of any question about the meaning or application of any of these guidelines as they affect your Association activities, you should consult with the Executive Director of the Association who, in turn, will obtain appropriate legal advice. By signing below, you will indicate that you have read this memorandum and agree to abide by it.

1. You should assume, as the enforcement authorities do, that the antitrust laws are as fully applicable to court reporters, CART providers, Certified Legal Video Specialists, captioners, instructors and other members of NCRA, the same as they are to doctors, lawyers, accountants, real estate brokers, and other professionals. The antitrust laws also apply to all your activities in this Association -- the fact that a violation of the antitrust laws occurs in the course of otherwise wholly legitimate Association activities is no defense.
2. Heavy penalties can be imposed on you, your company, if any, and this Association if you violate the antitrust laws in the course of your Association activities. For you personally, the penalty could be as much as three years' imprisonment, a $100,000 fine, or both. It is particularly important, therefore, to remain well within the bounds of lawful activity at all times.
3. It is a clear violation of the antitrust laws for members of the same profession or industry to reach any kind of an agreement or understanding concerning the price they will charge for their product or service, other terms or conditions of sale, or the customers they will or will not serve. Because the enforcement authorities, and perhaps the courts, may infer that an unlawful agreement was reached merely from the fact that prices or other matters were discussed at a meeting of the Association, it is prudent to avoid any discussion of the following subjects¹, except where the Executive Director has obtained advance clearance from Association legal counsel for the proposed discussion:

- (a) rates, fees, or charges (such as page rates, rates for expedited service or additional copies, attendance fees, hourly rates, etc.) of any reporter or reporting company, captioner or captioning company, or CART provider or CART company,
- (b) past, present or future level of such rates and charges, in general or in particular areas (either geographical areas or types of reporting work, such as medical depositions, or types of CART or captioning work, such as realtime in an educational setting or captioning for a television station);
- (c) costs of operation, including costs in general, particular components of costs (such as labor, equipment, etc.), costs for particular services, and changes or trends in any of these costs²;
- (d) methods or formulas for setting rates or charges for any reporting, CART or captioning product or service, especially proposals for fee schedules or relative value guides, or the like;
- (e) transcript production or performance standards that set a maximum obligation on reporters, CART providers or captioners rather than a minimum (e.g., a page of transcript shall have no more than 27 lines);
- (f) bids, bid solicitations by, or bids submitted to, any customer inviting bids, or any reporter or reporting company's, CART provider or CART company's, or captioner or captioning company's intentions with respect to bids;
- (g) the identity or location of customers of any reporter or reporting company, CART provider or CART company, or captioner or captioning company, or whether any reporter or reporting company, CART provider or CART company, or captioner or captioning company serves, will serve, or will decline to serve, any customers or group of customers, or area;
- (h) whether one or more reporters or reporting companies, one or more CART providers or CART companies, or one or more captioners or captioning companies, should boycott or refuse to provide services to any customer or group of customers, should do business only on certain terms and conditions, or should urge their customers or others to do so. (It is entirely proper, however, for the Association, its officers or individual members to promote vigorously the benefits of shorthand and realtime reporting, CART or captioning to potential users of reporting, CART and captioning services (both government and private), to describe to such users the disadvantages and drawbacks of other reporting systems, and to make organized efforts to obtain governmental action favorable to the interests of the reporting, CART and captioning professions.)

Under certain narrow circumstances, such as where rates or charges or any of the other topics listed above are regulated by statute or rule of court, the risks of discussing these topics may not be as great. Because of the magnitude of the risks involved, however, the guidance of the Executive Director and Association legal counsel must be sought in advance before engaging in any such discussions.

¹ If a discussion should wander into any of these areas, you must stop it at once, and if that proves impossible, you should leave the meeting, inform your staff liaison or Executive Director, and take whatever other steps are needed to make it clear that the discussion was not in any way sanctioned, authorized or approved by the Association.

² Association-sponsored educational programs limited to the comparative costs of different reporting, CART, captioning, and transcribing equipment or techniques, identification of the various cost items involved in operating a reporting, CART or captioning business, or improved business operating methods and techniques in general, are likely to be routinely cleared, provided there is no discussion whatsoever of rates or charges to customers or of formulas, schedules, methods, "rules of thumb," or the like to be used in the determination of such rates or charges. Clearance must still be sought, however, to insure that the line between permissible and impermissible activity is maintained.

Assumption of Risk and Waiver of Liability

Attending any in-person committee and/or board meeting may come with risks related to exposure to COVID-19 and other communicable diseases. All attendees voluntarily assume all risks related to such exposure and waive any claims against NCRA should they become sick. All attendees will be expected to review and follow any rules, regulations, or mandates put in place by federal, state, or local authorities and follow any safety conditions or protocols put in place by the hotel and/or NCRA.

Confidentiality

All committee members are required to sign a Confidentiality Agreement.

This is not a blanket requirement that all information discussed by a committee must be treated as confidential; rather, this is an affirmative obligation on all committees, task forces, etc., to consider, identify and define such categories of information likely to come to their attention in the course of conducting their official duties which are legitimately sensitive and must be protected. Any concerns should be raised with the staff liaison or the Executive Director.

I hereby affirm that I will not discuss or in any manner communicate confidential information that I may encounter while transacting business on behalf of the National Court Reporters Association (NCRA) to persons not on this committee unless they are specifically engaged by NCRA to assist with such matters or are current members of the NCRA Board of Directors.

If applicable [testing-related committees]:

Further, I agree not to participate in the development or presentation of any materials, outlines, tests, or courses specifically designed to prepare candidates for any NCRA national certification examination during my term of service and for at least three years after my term of service is concluded. I also agree not to take any test for a period of three years after serving on the committee.

This statement does not preclude the normal faculty activities of academic instruction.

If applicable [committees related to work products produced]:

Further, I understand that any works I may prepare, either by myself or with other members of the Committee, are irrevocably assigned to NCRA and shall remain NCRA's property. All copyright interests of such works are considered "works made for hire" and are the sole property of NCRA.

Conflict of Interest Policy and Disclosure Statement

All NCRA Board, committee, or task force members are required to sign a Conflict of Interest Policy and Disclosure Statement.

Conflict of Interest Policy

The legal duty to act in the organization's best interests

NCRA directors, officers, committee members, staff, and other volunteers face both a legal and an ethical obligation to base their actions and decisions solely on what is in the best interests of NCRA, in accordance with applicable state and federal laws and regulations, and in keeping with best governance practices encouraged by the IRS. Actions should not be influenced by personal considerations. Even the appearance of a conflict of interest must be avoided.

Duality of interests are common, and do not necessarily create a conflict

Individuals often have fully legitimate responsibilities to more than one board or organization. Such duality of interests do not necessarily create actual or even perceived conflicts. It is generally only when some specific issue arises in which both organizations have a direct interest that an actual conflict exists.

Curing the conflict

If such a situation develops, a range of actions can be taken to remove the conflict. Often, simple disclosure of the potential conflict, allowing the Board to act in a fully informed and aware manner, is sufficient. Often, the board or committee member may be asked to recuse themselves, or not participate in any discussions or actions on the issue for which the conflict exists. Rarely but occasionally, if the conflict is serious enough in nature, the board or committee member must be prepared to resign or otherwise remove themselves from the position of decision-making authority with the conflicting interest, if the NCRA Board should determine it is necessary for them to do so.

The Board/Committee, not the individual, determines if a conflict exists, and if so, what action is necessary

It is not for the individual member of a board or committee to decide whether a conflict exists. That determination lies with the board/committee itself. For the board or committee to make such an assessment and exercise its corporate responsibility to avoid conflicts of interest, all of its members must disclose any dualities of interest. This is done annually through the individual's completion of the attached disclosure form.

If, in the course of the conduct of its business, the board or committee enters into discussions that raise a concern for an individual that a duality of interest (whether previously disclosed or not) creates a potential conflict, the individual should immediately disclose (or remind) the board/committee leadership of the matter so it can be immediately addressed and resolved.

Actions to cure a potential conflict are not a judgment on the individual

It is important to stress that the existence of a conflict of interest and the actions taken to resolve that conflict are not punitive in nature nor are they in any way a negative reflection on the affected board or committee member's ethics, commitment to NCRA, or personal prudence. It is unrealistic to expect a volunteer leader to have no interests or commitments outside of his or her service on an NCRA board or committee. In fact, limiting service to individuals with absolutely no outside interests or experiences would not only be impractical, it would be detrimental to the quality and expertise of the board or committee.

Exercising care in disclosing all dualities of interest and abiding by the board or committee's decision on whether a conflict exists and how it should be cured (e.g. fully cooperating in a board or committee's decision that an individual should recuse themselves) is a sign of the highest ethical sensibilities.

Actions, such as recusal, also are not a reflection on the individual's ability to act in an objective or impartial manner. The integrity of volunteer leaders is not in question.

However, as US District Court Judge Edward Weinfeld expressed in a November 1982 opinion regarding a judge's duty to recuse him- or herself, "Despite the Court's subjective view that all matters can be resolved impartially, a judge has an independent duty to disqualify himself 'in any proceeding in which impartiality might reasonably be questioned.' The issue is not the Court's own introspective capacity to sit in fair and honest judgment ... but whether a reasonable member of the public ... might fairly question the Court's impartiality. This is an objective standard and 'where the question is close, the judge whose impartiality might reasonably be questioned must recuse himself.'"

Conflicts of interest defined (Revised by Board Action: November 10, 2003)

A conflict of interest occurs whenever an individual has a direct or indirect interest, financial or otherwise, in the outcome of any transaction or matter involving NCRA. A conflict of interest also occurs whenever an individual has a relationship with other parties to the transaction or matter such that the relationship might reasonably be expected to affect the judgment of the individual in the particular transaction or matter in a manner adverse to NCRA.

Conflicts of interest are not limited to formal financial partnerships or arrangements. Any management position or leadership role with decision-making authority (whether voluntary or for compensation) with any board, business network, consulting contract, or other business arrangement in the court reporting profession or related professional specialties (e.g.; CART, captioning) could potentially give rise to a conflict.

Depending upon the immediacy and seriousness of the conflict, a number of resolutions are possible. If the conflict is minimal, highly qualified, or only potential, it may be cured through nothing more than disclosure of the interest and a pledge to remain objective and neutral to it. Other conflicts are more serious and may require the board or committee member to remove him- or herself from any involvement in the association's discussions or decision making on the matter. (This is called recusal.) In rare cases, conflicts are so immediate and serious that resignation from the board, committee, or other association assignment is the only prudent means of avoiding the conflict.

It is the prerogative of the board, not the individual, to determine how severe a conflict is and the appropriate steps that must be taken to remedy it. Accordingly, disclosure of all relationships outside of the individual's official association role that could potentially create a conflict is critical to the organization's effective enforcement of appropriate conflict-of-interest policies.

If an individual has a conflict of interest or potential conflict of interest in connection with any NCRA transaction or matter, he or she should immediately notify the President, Executive Director, or other appropriate NCRA representative, and disclose all the material facts concerning the actual or potential conflict of interest and his or her relationship to the transaction or matter at issue.

If the conflict of interest arises in connection with the activities of any deliberative body (e.g., the Board of Directors), the conflict should be disclosed to the other members of the body and the individual ordinarily should not participate in the consideration of the transaction or matter at issue. If the conflict of interest arises in connection with a workshop, seminar, or other such program, the individual may be authorized to participate, provided that he or she agrees to disclose to the other participants and attendees the facts giving rise to the conflict and clearly identifies his or her remarks as personal opinion. If the conflict arises in connection with an NCRA publication, the article, book, or other material may be published with an appropriate disclosure to the reader.

The following statement will accompany the policy for signature:

I have read the NCRA Conflict-of-Interest Statement, and I support its intent.

I hereby certify that, to the best of my knowledge, I do not have any financial or other interest that raises an actual or potential conflict of interest with my activities on behalf of NCRA. If any actual or potential conflict of interest exists, the conflict, as well as the financial or other interest upon which it is based, is described in the written statement I have attached to this form.

By way of example, a financial or other interest that could give rise to a conflict of interest might include an equity or other ownership interest, a paid consulting agreement, or other business arrangement with a vendor associated with the court reporting, CART, or captioning industry. Among other things, this would cover the receipt of consulting or appearance fees, travel expenses, sales commissions, and royalty payments for the sale or licensing of hardware or software technology, etc. Normally, participation in user groups and beta testing (where the equipment is returned) would not be included or require disclosure. However, conflicts of interest are not limited to formal financial partnerships or arrangements. Any management position or leadership role with decision-making authority (whether voluntary or for compensation) with any board, business network, consulting contract, or other business relationship in the court reporting profession or related professional specialties (e.g.; CART, captioning) could potentially give rise to a conflict and should be disclosed.

If an actual or potential conflict of interest subsequently develops, I will promptly submit an amended Disclosure Statement to the Executive Director, who will forward it to the NCRA General Counsel or other appropriate NCRA representative.

I understand that it is the prerogative of the board, committee, or task force upon which I serve to decide how serious and immediate any conflict is and to determine what steps are necessary to cure the conflict. (These cures include disclosure, recusal, and in extreme cases, resignation.) I agree to abide by the decision of the governing board in any such matter that may arise.

As directed and where appropriate, I will make disclosure of the conflict of interest to NCRA readers, NCRA course participants, or to fellow members of NCRA deliberative bodies.

Conflict of Interest for Selection Committees

Introduction

The following policy has been approved by the NCRA Board of Directors to guide the handling of conflicts of interest for award and nominating committees in the selection of awardees/nominees. This policy applies to all NCRA-selection committees. The Association has similar policies governing other deliberating bodies that provide opportunities, benefits or awards to others, including procedures that guide the speed contest committee, scholarship selection committees and grant committees. The purpose of these policies is to avert to the extent possible biasing circumstances, or the appearance of biasing circumstances, in the selection of NCRA awardees/nominees.

Selection committee members understand that the issue is not whether they have the ability to act in an objective or impartial manner. The integrity of volunteer leadership is amply evident and their ability to act in a fair and honest manner is not in question. The issue is whether a prior personal or professional relationship might reasonably raise a question in the mind of a member of the general public who does not have access to the full information on the nomination or selection process. In order to avoid a question denigrating the prestige of the honor being bestowed with the award upon the selected member, NCRA chooses to err on the side of caution in application of these standards.

Ethical Standards

Award/Nominee Eligibility: Members of award/nomination selection committees are not eligible to be candidates for that award or board service during their term of service on the award/nominating selection committee.

Required Circumstances: Biasing or potential biasing relationships for or against a candidate or an award nominee require committee members to withdraw from service on award/nomination selection committees. They include, but are not limited to,:

- a. family member, spouse, or domestic partner;
- b. anyone with whom one has a current business or financial relationship;
- c. participating in the selection decision when a person made or advocated the candidate's current nomination.

Elective Circumstances: Members of award/nominating committees may for other reasons determine that they have conflicts or potential conflicts that require elimination from service and then act on that determination if they believe that service could affect the fairness of the selection process. However, the individual is obligated to inform the committee so the committee can make the determination.

1. Conflict of interest standards and implementation procedures for award/nominating committee service shall be widely publicized and readily accessible to NCRA members.
2. NCRA Officers and others appointing members of award/nominating selection committees shall make potential committee members aware of these ethical standards and the implementation procedures.
3. Alternates shall be appointed by or readily accessible to those appointing members of selection committees so that substitute appointments can be readily made if any committee member or members need to step down from service.
4. Upon receipt of all nomination forms, committee members need to make known whether they can continue service on the award/nominating committee or whether they are in a circumstance that mandates withdrawal from service.
5. If vacancies occur on award selection committees due to withdrawal of members from service, those vacancies shall be filled promptly by the NCRA President.
6. Any award selection chair or committee member with questions or ambiguous circumstances or who finds the full implementation disruptive shall seek the advice of the Executive Director who will, where necessary, consult with the President on this policy and its implementation.

Guidelines for NCRA Listservs

As members of the National Court Reporters Association (NCRA), we are dedicated to upholding our values of civility, professionalism, and kindness when interacting with our colleagues/peers. Our commitment to these principles not only strengthens NCRA but fosters a more inclusive and respectful community. In that spirit, NCRA has enacted the following policies that outline the expectations for membership, the Board of Directors, and Association officers for online conduct and encourages responsible digital citizenship for NCRA listservs and NCRA-labels social media platforms. By adhering to this policy, we can collectively work towards creating a more positive and engaging online environments for all.

To ensure the best possible experience for all listserv participants and to avoid legal liability, participants are asked to observe some basic guidelines for participation.

By using these e-mail lists, you agree that you have read and will follow the rules and guidelines set for these peer discussion groups and engagement platforms. You also agree to reserve discussions for topics best suited to the medium.

Please take a moment to acquaint yourself with these important guidelines. If you have questions about the NCRA Listserv, contact the NCRA Listserv Administrator at: listservadm@ncra.org. In order to preserve a climate that encourages both civil and fruitful dialogue in a lawful manner, NCRA reserves the right to suspend or terminate participation on all lists for members/participants who violate these guidelines based on NCRA's sole discretion.

Guidelines for Listserv Discussions

Please keep the following guidelines in mind when posting and engaging with others on NCRA Listserv.

- Do not challenge or attack others. The discussions on the listservs are meant to stimulate conversation not to create contention. Let others have their say, just as you may.
- Promotion of or solicitation for any particular service, product, or person is prohibited on NCRA listservs. Commercial messages will be deleted.
- Messages that are inconsistent with NCRA's mission, such as messages that promote alternative reporting methods over verbatim stenographic reporting technologies, are not allowed on listservs.

- Use caution when discussing products or business practices. Information posted is available for all to see, and comments are subject to libel, slander, and antitrust laws.
- All defamatory, abusive, profane, threatening, offensive, or illegal materials are strictly prohibited.
- Do not degrade others on the basis of gender, race, class, ethnicity, national origin, religion, sexual orientation, disability, or other classifications.
- Please note carefully all items listed in the disclaimer and legal rules below, particularly regarding copyright ownership, defamation, personal privacy rights, and antitrust concerns of information posted to the listserv.

Listserv Etiquette

NCRA Listserv is a medium with which to solicit the advice of your peers, benefit from their experience, and participate in an ongoing conversation. In order to facilitate meaningful and productive discussions, please keep the following Listserv Etiquette in mind:

- Include a signature tag on all messages. Include your full name, affiliation, location, and e-mail address.
- Be sure the Subject line clearly and concisely states the actual topic you are addressing. This allows members to respond more appropriately to your posting and makes it easier for members to search the archives by subject. This is particularly important when replying to a listserv posting or when changing the subject. (The subject line: "RE: Listserv Digest for the week of March 3-15, 2009" does not give your readers enough pertinent information when trying to decide whether or not to open and read your post.)
- When responding to a specific post, include enough text from the original message to make it clear exactly what posting it is you are commenting on. If there have been dozens of individual posts on a particular topic, your posting: "The exact same thing happened in Tuscaloosa just last year!" is probably not going to be as informative as you intended!
- But only include the relevant portions of the original message in your reply. If you get your listserv postings in Digest form, people don't need another copy of all 32 previous comments on the subject in the body or your reply. Cut and paste is a great tool. Feel free to use it.
- Only send a message to the entire list when it contains information that everyone can benefit from. If you want to carry on a private conversation, thank someone for a particularly useful piece of information, or express nothing more than your agreement with their posting, send a separate and private email to that individual, not to the listserv.
- This is the most frequently complained about violation of listserv etiquette, so just to be clear: Send messages such as "thanks for the information" or "me, too" to individuals--not to the entire list. Do this by using your e-mail application's forwarding option and typing in or cutting and pasting in the e-mail address of the individual to whom you want to respond.
- Do not forward messages or even segments of messages from the listserv to persons not on the listserv without the express permission of the person you are "quoting."
- Do not send administrative messages, such as "remove me from the list," through the listserv. Instead, click on the unsubscribe link that appears at the bottom of each email on that particular listserv. If you are changing e-mail addresses, send an email to the NCRA Listserv Administrator (listservadm@ncra.org).
- This is a listserv, not an online forum. Once you hit send, your message is delivered into the individual email inboxes of every subscriber on the list. There is no way for NCRA or anyone else to delete a posting after the fact if it is offensive, raises antitrust concerns or otherwise violates these rules and guidelines. So the burden is on you to be sensitive to the contents of what you post.

The Legal Stuff

By posting materials to NCRA Listservs mentioning NCRA or NCRA events/programs, you grant to NCRA the nonexclusive, worldwide, transferable right and license to display, copy, publish, distribute, transmit, print, and use such information or other material in any way and in any medium, including but not limited to print or electronic form.

Do not post any information or other material subject to copyright or privacy rights without obtaining the appropriate permission. By posting materials, the posting party warrants and represents that he or she owns the copyright with respect to such material or has received permission from the copyright owner and does not violate any third-party privacy rights.

The listservs are provided as a service of NCRA for its members and the community. The opinions of moderators, posters, and commentators are their own and not necessarily that of NCRA, and NCRA is not responsible for such opinions and information posted.

NCRA disclaims all warranties with regard to information posted on the listserv whether posted by NCRA or any third party. This disclaimer includes all implied warranties of merchantability and fitness. In no event shall NCRA be liable for any special, indirect, or consequential damages or any damages whatsoever resulting from loss of use, data, or profits arising out of or in connection with the use or performance of any information posted on this site.

You are responsible for any consequences resulting from your postings, whether intended or unintended. Because violation of these guidelines may place other members and NCRA at risk of legal claims, NCRA reserves the right to remove postings in violation of these guidelines based on NCRA's sole discretion.

Basic Antitrust Rules. The lawyers' word it this way: Messages should not be posted if they might be construed as encouraging or facilitating members in arriving at any agreement that either expressly or by implication leads to price fixing, a boycott of another's business, or other conduct intended to illegally restrict free trade. Messages that encourage or facilitate an agreement about the following subjects are inappropriate and are strictly prohibited:

- prices;
- boycotts or refusals to do business;
- discounts or terms or conditions of sale;
- salaries;
- profits;
- profit margins or cost data;
- market shares;
- sales territories or markets;
- allocation of customers or territories; or
- selection, rejection, or termination of customers or suppliers
- staff salaries, titles, assigned duties

What it means in plain English: Any discussion that might be viewed by enforcement authorities as leading to increased prices, decreased competition, or even minimizing discounts, gifts or promotions are problematic. Even perfectly innocent discussions asking what fees (amount) reporters charge for particular services, whether they charge for a particular ancillary service or whether it is part of the basic page rate, or comments that just praise or denounce the pricing and business practices of others could be construed as a conversation intended to "encourage" or "facilitate" a conspiracy (agreement) to "fix prices," encourage a "boycott" or otherwise "illegally restrict trade."

Why do we make such a big thing about antitrust compliance?

The penalties for violating federal antitrust laws are severe. The maximum criminal penalty for violating the Sherman Act is $1 million for an individual and from $10 to $100 million for a corporation (including associations). Under sentencing guidelines, alternative maximum fines can be imposed of up to double the monetary gain realized by the offender or twice the loss to another person.

Individuals and corporate officers who are found guilty of price fixing or market allocation will virtually always be sentenced to jail pursuant to federal sentencing guidelines. Community service cannot be used to avoid imprisonment. The minimum recommended sentence is four months; the maximum is three years.

Additionally, there are civil penalties such as injunctions or cease and desist orders which could result in government supervision of association members, restrictions on association activities or even putting the association out of existence.

Civil suits may be brought by consumers or competitors. Civil antitrust actions result in damage awards and attorneys' fees. Successful litigants are entitled to triple damages – financial payments of three times the claimed financial harm.

Defending against an alleged antitrust violation is extremely costly, even if you are entirely vindicated in the end. NCRA's own history proves this point. Twice in the past, NCRA has had to incur extraordinary legal costs and staff time to defend certain practices even though NCRA eventually prevailed.

The first time, the U.S. Federal Trade Commission challenged NCRA's gift giving prohibition. The FTC argued that the gift prohibition was really just an agreement among competitors not to incur a promotional expense that is common commercial practice – just like if all the airlines got together and decided to stop awarding frequent flyer miles so they could all save money. Although NCRA narrowly prevailed by arguing that gifts by officers of the court trigger unique ethical concerns, the FTC made clear that NCRA cannot discourage volume discounting or restrict other business practices under the guise of ethics. NCRA's gift giving rules and "Ethics First" program are very narrowly crafted and carefully limited to meet possible DOJ or FTC scrutiny.

The second time, the U.S. Department of Justice investigated the NCRA Constitution and Bylaws prohibition blocking voice writers from becoming NCRA members, which the DOJ characterized as a possible restraint of trade. NCRA prevailed on the basis of our superior technology and the fact that voice writers were not kept from getting business by being barred from NCRA membership. Although cleared, the DOJ indicated that future NCRA actions against competitors utilizing non-stenographic technologies could be subject to further challenge.

Once again, although NCRA prevailed in each of these situations, the costs in terms of time and money were extraordinary. (Legal costs from the most recent DOJ investigation were well into six figures; responding to information and document requests consumed a staff person full time for a period of several weeks and additional staff time for a period of more than half a year. And all of that on a case in which NCRA ultimately won on all counts.)

For these reasons, extreme caution must be exercised on the listserv to avoid further antitrust challenges.

Finally, care must be exercised not to rely too much on the so-called Noerr-Pennington doctrine. This doctrine provides some measure of protection for discussions or actions relating to matters that are controlled by government regulations or actions, such as official page rates for court transcripts. However, such protection may not extend to discussions and collusion about charges for ancillary services that are not regulated.

The Noerr-Pennington doctrine can be utilized to protect lobbying communications and litigation positions taken in good faith, but this immunity does not extend to discussions about the pros and cons of the underlying business practices or to sharing information that is otherwise prohibited. So, while it is appropriate to share public filings and lobbying positions on a listserv and even to accurately summarize in an impartial manner the allegations in a lawsuit, participants may not use the circulation of a public document as a pretext to discuss or share information about their individual business practices or to suggest how others should conduct their business. (When circulating public documents from legal proceedings, care must also be taken to accurately describe claims still under adjudication as allegations, not proven facts.)

Tough Action by Antitrust Regulators. In the not-too-distant past, Antitrust regulators have taken a strong stance against what they consider to be anticompetitive activities conducted under an association umbrella. In 2009, for example, a FTC enforcement action came down even harder and more explicitly than prior rulings. The FTC required the National Association of Music Manufacturers to enter into a Consent Agreement and implement an onerous and costly antitrust compliance program that severely curtailed the association's services and operations even though there was no evidence that the membership's discussion ever actually resulted in any agreement or impact on prices. Essentially, the FTC stated that, as a matter of law, mere exchanges of information within a profession on pricing, pricing strategies, restrictions on advertising and maintaining the profitability of a profession or industry serve no appropriate, legitimate, defensible or beneficial public purpose, and should be prohibited. This suggests that we can always expect stringent and aggressive enforcement, so NCRA and its members must conduct ourselves on the listserv and otherwise in a manner that will withstand such scrutiny.

Antitrust restrictions and concerns are not unique to court reporting. These same rules and these same concerns apply to all trade associations and professional societies, large and small. The federal government has brought civil or criminal actions against national, state and even local organizations. Enforcement actions have been taken against barbers, farmers, musical instrument sellers, pharmacists, audiovisual companies, and the list goes on. The exposure to legal liability exists on any website or online forum that permits such discussions to go on, whether the list managers are aware of them or not.

Final Warning. Just one more time, for emphasis: it is the strong position of antitrust regulators that it is illegal for competitors (such as the NCRA membership) to talk about raising prices, maintaining current prices, or even about minimizing discounts, gifts or promotions. Under the antitrust laws, such discussions and any resulting collective actions are viewed as hurting consumers, because they cause prices to be higher, for services to be more restricted, and/or for discounts, gifts and promotions to be more limited, than if the discussions and collective actions never occurred. The fact that the competitors who engage in these discussions genuinely feel they need to do so in order to protect their incomes or even to preserve their profession is no defense. It just reinforces the view of antitrust regulators that these discussions and collective actions are driven by economic and profit motives, rather than concerns for the public welfare, and are illegal.

For this reason, professional associations like NCRA and its members are well advised to avoid any semblance of activity which might lead to the belief that the association members had agreed, even informally, to something that could have an effect on prices, fees or competition.

So, beware. Take the dangers of engaging in such discussions seriously!

Conclusion

NCRA wants its forums and listserv communities to be a safe and pleasant place for reporters to engage in dialogue. Please be sensitive to these concerns and understanding when a gentle reminder gets posted suggesting that a certain line of discussion be dropped. But also, be aware that, if all else fails, NCRA reserves the right to terminate access to any user who does not abide by these guidelines -- for their own good and for the good of other listserv community participants and NCRA itself.

Illegal Amendments

Proposed Constitution and Bylaws amendments which are deemed illegal by General Counsel shall not be published to the membership.

Ownership of Materials and Information

Any material or information that may be created, prepared or modified, in my capacity as a Committee or Board member either by myself or with other members of the Committee (Works) are "works made for hire" and are the sole property of NCRA and, therefore, NCRA shall own all right, title and interest in and to the Works, including the entire and exclusive copyrights in the Works.

It is agreed to assign to NCRA ownership of all right, title and interest therein, including but not limited to the entire copyright in the Works. It is agreed to execute all documents, take all actions, and provide assistance as reasonably requested by NCRA to perfect its ownership of the entire copyright to said Works.

Said Works are a joint effort, authorized by Board, supported by staff, engaged in by committee, and are not the province, point of origin, ownership, or credit, of any one person.

If applicable [testing-related committees]:

Further, I agree not to participate in the development or presentation of any materials, outlines, tests, or courses specifically designed to prepare candidates for any NCRA national certification examination during my term of service and for at least three years after my term of service is concluded. I also agree not to take any test for a period of three years after serving on the committee.

This statement does not preclude the normal faculty activities of academic instruction.

Social Media Policy

For Staff and Volunteer Leadership

The National Court Reporters Association (NCRA) is dedicated to upholding our values of civility, professionalism, and kindness when interacting with our colleagues/peers. Our commitment to these principles not only strengthens NCRA but fosters a more inclusive and respectful community. In that spirit, NCRA has enacted the following policies that outline the expectations for online conduct and encourages responsible digital citizenship for social media platforms. By adhering to this policy, we can collectively work towards creating a more positive and engaging online environments for all.

Policy statement

NCRA uses social media to share industry and association information with the membership and anyone interested in court reporting, captioning, and legal videography. This may include court reporters, CART and broadcast captioners, legal videographers, schools and programs, instructors, firms, professionals in peripheral industries, state and related associations, vendors, students, steno enthusiasts, and prospective members and students. Social media also provides the opportunity for high-quality customer service with current and prospective members through direct interaction and engagement.

Application

This policy applies to all NCRA staff and members who serve in volunteer leadership positions who use social media channels to speak on NCRA's behalf or otherwise may be associated with NCRA on social media, including NCRA officers, directors, and committee members.

Purpose of social media

NCRA uses social media as a method for sharing industry and association information. This information can include, but is not limited to, announcements from the association, reminders of upcoming deadlines, industry news and updates, and resources and tips about business, grammar, or technology. NCRA can also use social media to share and respond to information posted by others in the court reporting, captioning, and legal videography community, including schools, agencies, state associations, individuals, and others. Finally, social media provides an opportunity for the association to share lighter-hearted content, such as jokes and memes, which the membership would find enjoyable but would be inappropriate in other contexts.

Social media also provides an opportunity to deliver high-quality customer service for current and prospective members through direct interaction and engagement. The NCRA-authorized moderators can answer questions posed directly by members, offer explanations or clarifications when members post information that they find confusing or is incorrect, and even provide empathy and encouragement for members and students who write about their professional struggles. Sharing content from other sources gives NCRA a chance to add something to the conversation and recognize another organization or member for something they've provided or accomplished.

Discussion groups and pages provide a place for members to have professional discussions on a variety of topics that affect them and their day-to-day work lives. By monitoring the discussions, NCRA staff can also get insight into the types of concerns that court reporters, captioners, and legal videographers face in their personal and professional lives and use that knowledge to provide additional services or content that would benefit the membership.

NCRA has an opportunity to use social media as a way to promote the profession to an outside audience. This can range from sharing information that educates the public on the true nature of court reporting, captioning, and legal videography to showcasing the positive attributes of these fields, especially when using platforms that are populated by younger people who may consider these fields as a potential career.

NCRA social media should not be used to discuss controversial or divisive political or social issues that are unrelated to the profession and the mission of NCRA.

Roles and responsibilities

NCRA staff

While several staff members have admin rights to various NCRA social media outlets, the Content Manager is primarily responsible for daily strategy and application. Other NCRA staff members are members of groups or have a presence on NCRA social media in other ways. All NCRA social media material must go through an NCRA staff moderator. If the staff member posts directly to a discussion group, for example, that staff member should alert the staff moderator about the post. NCRA staff is required to monitor all social media platforms, cultivate discussion through content, and address destructive and/or disparaging comments as necessary and appropriate, and remove inappropriate postings when the posted content violates NCRA's Etiquette Guidelines. From time to time, staff is required to review NCRA's social media strategy to ensure that each platform and profile is being used advantageously.

NCRA Members Who Serve In Leadership Positions

Members do not have admin or moderator rights, but they serve an important role on NCRA social media. The NCRA President, for example, while not required to be active on social media, can serve as a voice for the association when members would be more comfortable hearing information from an individual rather than an organization. NCRA officers, directors, and committee members may be asked to contribute to online discussions by answering a question, clarifying information, advocating for the profession or association, or sharing information, especially if these tasks fall within committee charges.

Guidelines

Anyone who may be associated with NCRA, including staff, officers, directors, and committee members, need to be conscientious that their actions on social media can reflect back on the organization.

General guidelines

- Make sure any information about the association is accurate. If you aren't sure, ask.
- NCRA is not affiliated with any political, religious, etc., organization or group. Staff and members should consider how their posts may inadvertently link the association with any of these organizations or groups.
- Nothing on the Internet is truly private. Be thoughtful and carefully consider what information you post on social media.
- Everyone is encouraged to share content from NCRA profiles on their own pages.
- NCRA members, especially officers, directors, committee members, and other industry and association leaders, hold a unique position as ambassadors for the association. At times, it may be more valuable for a member to respond to an issue rather than a staff member because the member may hold more trust, respect, and esteem in the eyes of the membership.
- NCRA staff members are not required to join NCRA groups, follow NCRA pages, connect with members, or even identify themselves as employees of NCRA on social media. Staff members should use discretion on social media and follow the Etiquette Guidelines, especially if their job description does not include social media.
- Everyone is encouraged to contact the NCRA Content Manager for guidance on social media if desired.

Social media platforms

NCRA has created NCRA-labeled social media presence on a number of platforms, including Facebook, X (formerly Twitter), LinkedIn, Instagram, and YouTube.

Facebook

NCRA's presence on Facebook includes a main NCRA Facebook page, an NCRA Students page, a CLVS page, a Court Reporting & Captioning Memes page, and the following Facebook groups:

- CART Captioners - NCRA
- Captioners - NCRA
- Official Reporters - NCRA
- Court Reporting Technology
- Freelance Court Reporters - NCRA
- Scopists & Proofreaders - NCRA
- Legal Videographers - CLVS
- NCRA's Realtime Program

X (formerly Twitter)

NCRA's X account is NCRA Official Page (@NCRA).

Instagram

NCRA's Instagram account is @ncraofficial.

LinkedIn

NCRA's presence on LinkedIn includes a National Court Reporters Association company page as well as the Court Reporting and Captioning Group, Certified Legal Video Specialists group and the NCRA A TO Z alumni group.

YouTube

NCRA has one YouTube channel. Included on this channel are videos from members about why they love the court reporting and captioning professions and also videos from and about NCRA events.

Moderation

Anyone posting on NCRA social media on behalf of the association must always be polite and professional, especially when representing the association. It is important to remember that there is another person on the other side of the screen, and that person deserves to be treated with courtesy and respect. Staff is still encouraged to follow the NCRA style guide while writing for social media, although style conventions may be bent slightly in order to fit the 280 character limit on X (formerly Twitter). The nature of social media also allows staff members to use a more lighthearted, conversational tone in writing.

Posting on all NCRA social media pages and forums must abide by the Etiquette Guidelines, and any posts in violation of the Etiquette Guidelines may be removed based on NCRA's sole discretion. For example, posts containing harassment, profanity, and any anti-trust discussions (which include discussing rates or boycotts) shall be deleted. Commercial messages will also be deleted; however, members may post referrals in the Scopists & Proofreaders group, where members are allowed to advertise services or needs for services. Harassment includes bullying between or among members, discriminatory posts, or posts that otherwise threaten members or the industry. NCRA pages and forums are meant to be safe places for like-minded professionals to engage in conversation with each other. All other discussions are encouraged. See the section on antitrust issues below for more information.

Any direct questions or concerns requiring a response shall be responded to as soon as possible. When the staff moderator needs information from another staff member in order to answer a post on NCRA's social media platforms, the staff member should respond as soon as possible so the staff moderator can answer the member quickly. The staff moderator should clearly indicate if the inquiry is for social media in the subject line of an email if the inquiry is not addressed in person or over the phone. On discussion boards, NCRA staff is not expected to directly engage with posts unless the discussion revolves around an NCRA policy or program, and the staff member could clarify anything causing confusion.

Discussion groups

NCRA staff must approve users before they can participate in discussion boards. The social media team may remove users at their discretion who break the discussion board rules.

Antitrust issues

Trade and professional associations, as groups of competitors, are under particular scrutiny with regard to pricing behavior, even if agreements, etc., are only inferred. In addition, legal defense is costly, even if the user and NCRA are eventually cleared of wrongdoing. It is in the best interest of the association and the membership to avoid any behavior that could be seen as violating antitrust laws. It is important to keep in mind that nothing on the Internet – even in closed discussion groups – is truly private. This is not meant to scare members but to ensure awareness.

Discussions that must be avoided that can trigger Antitrust exposure include:

- Prices
- discounts or other terms or conditions of sale
- salaries
- profits
- gifts, rewards and incentives provided to customers
- profit margins or cost data
- market shares
- boycotts
- sales territories or markets
- allocation of customers or territories
- selection, rejection, or termination of customers or suppliers

Members may not post any information regarding specific prices or fees charged or paid as well as information concerning prices, pricing practices, discounts, or other terms or conditions of sale either obtained from or offered to another entity.

Non-NCRA groups

There are many pages and groups related to court reporting, captioning, legal videography, etc., on social media that are not moderated by or otherwise associated with NCRA. Staff, directors, officers, and committee members are to use their discretion in representing NCRA in these groups. Below are a few guidelines.

- It is the individual's choice whether to be involved in these groups or not, recognizing that there is value in seeing or participating in discussions in other locations.

- NCRA is not responsible for responding to anti-NCRA discussions in forums that are not moderated by the Association. Members who are part of these groups may see an opportunity to correct inaccurate information about the Association in these conversations.
- If staff or members see instances of copyright violations or other legal situations that NCRA should be aware of such information shall be forwarded to the appropriate staff member so the Association can determine what, if any, actions need to be taken.
- Depending upon the non-NCRA group and circumstances, it may be important for the individual to indicate they are responding in their personal capacity or refrain from responding at all.
- The use of NCRA graphics, branding, and the use of the NCRA name in a group or page title that is not listed on NCRA's website as part of the NCRA-labeled social media platform is strictly prohibited.

Maintenance

Basic responsibilities

The staff moderator should check in with all NCRA social media platforms a minimum of once per business day. During a check-in, the staff moderator should respond to any posts requiring an answer from NCRA, approve requests to post to the discussion group (if the setting so requires), approve new members to the discussion groups, scan newsfeeds/timelines for shareable content, and monitor metrics.

Providing content

On platforms where NCRA staff is responsible for providing content, new content should appear on a consistent basis. This content can include original content from NCRA, or it can include shares, retweets, etc., from other profiles. Content should be scheduled to appear on NCRA social media forums when more members are likely to see it and should be spread out throughout the day. This is especially important on Facebook and Twitter. On YouTube, since content usually comes from events, this new content should be posted as soon as the new content is available. All content on YouTube must be captioned.

Each piece of content should be presented in a way that is appropriate to the platform, incorporating visuals, hashtags, etc. as appropriate and for maximum exposure. The Content Manager may, from time to time, decide to pay for a specific post to be boosted if the content in question requires a wider audience or is part of a specific marketing campaign.

In addition to monitoring NCRA social media platforms, the staff moderator should follow related profiles. These include: national, state and local court reporting, captioning, and videography associations; organizations from related industries such as deaf and hard-of-hearing or legal organizations; court reporting schools and programs; court reporting, captioning, and legal videography firms; industry vendors; national news outlets; government-related organizations; competing organizations, such as those representing voice writers, transcribers, and electronic reporters; and important individuals within the association, including board members and influencers who are active on social media. Monitoring these profiles will help the staff moderator stay on top of industry news and find content that members may also find valuable, either as a share or retweet or for future content in NCRA publications. Following or reposting content from any individual or organization is not an official endorsement by NCRA.

Hashtags

Official NCRA event hashtags should also be attached to any posts related to events.

Because of the conversational nature of social media, the staff moderator is also required to monitor and use appropriate hashtags.

Best practices

Staff moderators are responsible for staying on top of current social media best practices so that NCRA social media platforms are being used efficiently, intelligently, and successfully.

Implementation, monitoring, and review

At the beginning of every NCRA fiscal year, and reviewed during mid-year, the social media team should draft social media objectives for the upcoming year to develop goals, action items, and an overall social media strategy.

Social media metrics for each platform should be kept on a monthly basis. These metrics can be used to develop future goals and improvements.

SECTION 7: FINANCE

Contracts

For contracts with a cumulative annual value of $50,000 or more, NCRA's Executive Director shall obtain approval from the Executive Committee. For contracts with a cumulative annual value between $30,000 and $50,000, NCRA's Executive director shall provide the Executive Committee with the opportunity to review and discuss the contracts.

All contracts with a cumulative annual value between $30,000 and $50,000 will be presented to the Executive Committee for review and discussion prior to execution. The RFP requirement may be waived if there are other ways to determine the suitability and competitiveness of a contract and also in situations where there is long-standing relationship with a vendor or lack of suitable substitute. Any such waiver shall be reviewed and discussed with the Executive Committee at the $30,000 level and shall be subject to approval by the Executive Committee at the $50,000 level.

Before an employee is hired or a binding contract is entered into, the Executive Director shall disclose in writing to the Board of Directors any and all prior business or personal relationship with said person or entity. Failure to make written disclosure will constitute grounds for disciplinary action, up to and including termination with cause, of the Executive Director.

Expenditures outside the approved budget must be approved by the Board.

Corporate Credit Cards

1. NCRA corporate credit cards may be distributed to members of the Executive Committee.
2. NCRA Executive Committee members should specify on their credit card receipts the business purpose of expenses charged to NCRA corporate credit card accounts (i.e., Board Meeting, Committee Meeting, Annual Conference, etc.).
3. Submit Credit Card receipts immediately following the event along with the expense detail to the Director of Governance. Upon receipt of the credit card statement, it will be emailed to you for your signature and approval of charges.

A. Filing and Investigation of Complaints

1. The Executive Director and the Chair of CAPR have the authority to determine whether CAPR should initiate an investigation into whether an individual violated NCRA testing policies and procedures on an NCRA-administered test based on any credible information received by NCRA. The Executive Director and the Chair of CAPR have the sole discretion to determine if there is a reasonable basis to believe that a violation of NCRA testing policies and procedures may have occurred.
2. Once the decision has been made that CAPR should investigate whether a violation of NCRA testing policies and procedures has occurred, the Executive Director shall forward all information received to CAPR. CAPR will review all the information and determine whether there is sufficient reason to believe that a violation of NCRA testing policies and procedures has occurred. If CAPR determines that there is insufficient evidence to determine whether a violation of NCRA testing policies and procedures has occurred, no further action will be taken by CAPR.
3. If CAPR makes an initial determination that there is sufficient reason to believe a violation of NCRA testing policies and procedures has occurred; the Executive Director shall send a copy of these complaint procedures, along with all of the evidence considered by CAPR and CAPR's initial determination to the individual.
4. CAPR will send all written communications to the individual by email, certified mail, or overnight express courier. The individual has thirty (30) days from the date of the letter of notification within which to submit a written response to CAPR.
5. CAPR shall keep confidential all records, documents, files and evidence pertaining to a complaint, and proceedings will be closed to the public, except as may be necessary for compliance with these complaint procedures or to take ancillary action with respect thereto, or unless ordered otherwise by a court or agency of competent jurisdiction.

B. Proceedings by the Council of the Academy of Professional Reporters

1. When the thirty-day (30) period has elapsed, the Executive Director shall forward the response, if any, to CAPR. CAPR may reach its final decision based on the original information received and the response, if any, or may ask the Executive Director to obtain additional information. CAPR may also grant an opportunity for the individual to be heard either in person or through legal counsel. If CAPR determines there are disputed issues of fact that are material to its decision, it may grant any party an opportunity to present relevant information, including documents and witnesses, and an opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses called by any party. CAPR shall be the judge of the relevance and materiality of any information offered or that it may otherwise consider. Conformity to legal rules of evidence shall not be necessary.
2. CAPR shall thereafter prepare a written decision containing its findings of fact and conclusions. It may invalidate the results for the test associated with the violation. It may also determine that the individual shall be barred from taking any NCRA-administered test for a minimum of one (1) year or permanently depending upon the nature of the violation.

In addition, if the individual is a member of NCRA, CAPR may recommend that the Member should be expelled or suspended (up to one (1) year) from the Association, or that the Member receive a cautionary letter, warning, reprimand or statement of advice. If CAPR recommends that a member be suspended or expelled from the Association, this recommendation shall not become final unless it is sustained by the Board of Directors in accordance with the Constitution and Bylaws. A CAPR recommendation for suspension or expulsion requires a two-thirds (2/3) vote of the Board of Directors at a meeting at which a quorum is present.

If a reporter's membership is suspended or revoked for violating NCRA testing policies and procedures, NCRA shall publish that information in the Journal of Court Reporting or other NCRA publication, after a decision on a complaint is final.

Should a Member resign his or her membership in NCRA while a violation investigation is pending, CAPR shall complete the processing of the investigation as specified in these procedures.

3. CAPR shall inform all parties as to the status of the investigation within ninety (90) days after the case is received by CAPR from the Executive Director. Normally, CAPR shall render its decision within one hundred eighty (180) days after the case is received by CAPR from the Executive Director. Notwithstanding the above, CAPR may suspend the investigation pending the outcome of any related administrative, civil or criminal proceedings, or for any other reason deemed appropriate by CAPR to ensure fairness or due process for all parties.

C. Appeals

1. The Executive Director shall promptly send a copy of the decision of CAPR to the individual. If the individual wishes to appeal CAPR's decision, such appeal must be filed in writing to the Board of Directors within 30 days from the date of the letter notifying the individual of CAPR's decision. The appeal must specify the grounds upon which the party contends CAPR's decision is erroneous and should be revised.

2. If no appeal is taken within the thirty-day (30) period from a decision by the Council of the Academy of Professional Reporters, the decision will be final and a copy of the decision will be placed in the individual's confidential file; provided that the Board of Directors shall sustain any decision to suspend or expel a Member in accordance with the Constitution and Bylaws.
3. If an appeal is received within the thirty-day (30) period, the Executive Director shall forward to the Board of Directors the appeal, and all other documentation relating to the matter. The Board may decide the matter on the basis of these documents, or may request any additional information it deems appropriate. The Board may affirm, reverse, modify or return the decision or recommendation to the Council of the Academy of Professional Reporters for further review with specific reasons therefor.

D. Costs and Expenses

The individual shall bear his or her own costs and expenses with respect to any proceeding, except in regard to an appeal of CAPR's decision. In that case, at the discretion of the Executive Director, the individual shall be required to bear the costs for producing copies of all documents necessary for the Board to review and decide the appeal.

SECTION 9: AFFILIATED UNITS

NCSA Guidelines

I. Purpose

The purpose of the National Congress of State Associations (NCSA) is to provide a forum for affiliated association leaders to act as ambassadors of NCRA and the court reporting and captioning professions; to exchange information, experiences, and various points of view involving NCRA and the court reporting and captioning professions; and to develop guiding resolutions for consideration by the NCRA Board of Directors. NCSA is to meet virtually at least quarterly and once in person at the time of the Annual Conference of the National Court Reporters Association (NCRA).

II. Affiliation Eligibility

To be eligible for affiliation, an association shall be approved by the NCRA Board of Directors pursuant to Article XVI—Affiliated Units of the NCRA Constitution and Bylaws.

III. Organization

The NCSA body is defined as affiliated unit delegates and/or alternates of affiliated units.

The NCSA body shall be composed of two delegates from each affiliated unit. For purposes of the NCSA Annual Meeting, each affiliated unit may designate two delegates and two alternates. No delegate or alternate shall represent more than one affiliated unit. Each affiliated unit shall have no more than two votes. No representative shall vote by proxy.

The delegates and alternates from each affiliated unit shall be Registered or Participating Members of NCRA in good standing within 30 days of appointment by the state association and at the time of each meeting of NCSA.

Each affiliated unit shall determine, independently of NCRA and NCSA leadership, who shall serve as their delegates and alternates.

During the Annual NCSA Meeting, an alternate may take the seat of a delegate at the delegate's request. In such case, the alternate will remain seated as the delegate for the remainder of the meeting. The original delegate shall remain an alternate for the remainder of the meeting.

Affiliated units shall notify the NCRA Staff Liaison of the names of its delegates and alternates, as appropriate, at least 30 days prior to each meeting of NCSA.

In the event that a state is not represented by an affiliated unit, the NCRA President, in consultation with the NCSA Chair, may appoint delegates-at-large from that state, with such delegates-at-large having a voice, but no vote, at any NCSA meeting.

The NCSA Chair and Vice Chair shall be appointed by the NCRA Board of Directors and shall each serve for a one-year (1) term with the option to serve a second term upon appointment by the President and approval by the NCRA Board of Directors.

The Immediate Past Chair of NCSA shall serve as an advisor to the current NCSA Chair, Vice Chair, and NCSA Leadership Team. The Immediate Past Chair shall serve in an advisory capacity only and shall have no obligation to attend meetings or actively participate in the day-to-day activities of NCSA, nor shall the Immediate Past Chair be a member of the NCSA Leadership Team.

IV. Meetings

In consultation with NCRA staff and the NCRA Staff Liaison to NCSA, the agenda for all meetings of NCSA shall be prepared by the NCSA Leadership Team.

The NCSA Chair and Vice Chair shall, in advance of the Annual NCSA Meeting, contact affiliated unit leaders and request topics of importance to NCRA and its membership, affiliated units, or the profession as a whole.

The NCRA Staff Liaison to NCSA shall notify affiliated unit leaders of the date and time of each meeting of NCSA.

V. Meeting Procedures

The following meeting procedures shall be followed at each NCSA meeting. "Robert's Rules of Order Newly Revised" shall govern the NCSA Annual Meeting and all other NCSA meetings to which they apply and in which they do not conflict with the policies and procedures adopted by the NCRA Board of Directors.

During topic discussion, affiliated units shall designate one delegate to speak on a topic. Delegates shall yield the floor as appropriate to the NCSA Chair and to fellow NCSA delegates to allow for a free-flowing exchange of ideas and information. The NCSA Chair may recognize, at the Chair's discretion, individuals attending the meeting as observers. Any such supplements to the meeting procedure shall be provided to the delegates, alternates, and/or representatives at least 15 days in advance of the meeting.

The NCSA Annual Meeting room shall have clearly designated areas for the NCSA delegates and alternates, for members of NCRA, and for other registered attendees of the NCRA Annual Conference.

The NCRA Staff Liaison to NCSA shall distribute the minutes of the meeting, within 30 days of its receipt, to the NCSA delegates, the NCSA Leadership Team, the NCRA Board of Directors, and the affiliated units. The minutes may be made available to any other party at the discretion of the NCSA Chair and the NCRA President.

The NCRA Staff Liaison to NCSA shall receive and validate the credentials of the NCSA Annual Meeting delegates and alternates, maintain a continuous roll call, and report these totals to the NCSA Chair as the meeting commences.

VI. Resolutions Procedures

In an effort to best serve the NCRA membership and profession, affiliated units and/or the NCSA Leadership Team may submit resolutions to be considered by the NCRA Board of Directors at any time throughout the year.

Resolutions shall be written in a clear and concise manner, containing one single topic. Resolutions should relate to the following areas for information and discussion purposes:

- Problems experienced at the national, state and/or local level and constructive suggestions for assistance from NCRA;
- Assistance affiliated units feel are needed from NCRA;
- Suggestions for increasing professionalism among verbatim stenographic reporters and captioners.
- Suggestions and ideas for strengthening the profession;
- Suggestions for improving ongoing programs in NCRA;
- Positive experiences and programs which have proven beneficial to affiliated units.

Submission

All resolutions, and any amendments thereto, shall be submitted on a resolution form supplied by the NCSA Chair, Vice Chair and/or the NCRA Staff Liaison to NCSA. A full rationale shall be stated in support of any proposed resolution. A NCSA resolution shall be submitted to the NCSA Chair, NCSA Vice Chair and/or the NCRA Staff Liaison to NCSA. The NCSA Chair may modify any resolution with minor editorial changes, provided the changes do not alter the intent.

All resolutions submitted by an affiliated unit shall be signed by the President of the affiliated unit and approved by the Board of Directors of the affiliated unit.

All resolutions submitted by the NCSA Leadership Team shall so indicate. No signature shall be required.

Members of NCRA who wish to have resolutions introduced to NCSA shall request sponsorship/submission of the resolutions by an affiliated unit or by the NCSA Leadership Team. Neither an affiliated unit, nor the NCSA Leadership Team, shall be required to sponsor/submit any such resolution.

When two or more resolutions are submitted having the same intent, the NCSA Chair may prepare a composite resolution. Each of the submitting affiliated units shall be identified on such resolutions.

The NCSA Leadership Team shall organize all resolutions in subject classifications as follows: Accreditation; Certification; Continuing Education; Ethics; Financial Affairs; Governance; Government Affairs; Membership; Member Affairs; Professional Issues; Public Relations; Publications; Reporter Training; State/National Relations.

Discussion and Outcome

When a resolution is submitted, the NCSA Chair will notify the NCSA body of the submitted resolution within one week. The NCSA Chair shall be responsible for initiating and overseeing discussion as to a resolution on an online email listserv dedicated to affiliated unit leadership.

The NCSA body shall have two weeks from the date the NCSA Chair submits the resolution for discussion on the affiliated unit leadership listserv.

Within two weeks after the close of discussion of the resolution by the NCSA body, the NCSA Chair, in consultation with the NCSA Vice Chair and the NCSA Leadership Team, shall submit a summary of the discussion to the NCRA Board of Directors for its consideration. Should the discussion period result in changes or amendments to the resolution that the Leadership Team determines to be more than minor edits, the Committee may request approval of the changes by the sponsoring affiliate. The affiliate may approve the edits, withdraw the resolution, or instruct the Committee to submit the resolution as originally presented.

The NCRA Board of Directors will address submitted resolutions no later than the next board meeting, provided that the resolution is submitted at least forty-five (45) days in advance. Submitted resolutions can also be addressed by the Board of Directors before the next board meeting at the discretion of the NCRA President.

Within two weeks of the Board of Directors acting on a NCSA resolution, the NCSA Chair shall be responsible for notifying the NCSA body of the Board's decision, the rationale behind the decision, and, if necessary, a timeline documenting implementation. In the case of a Board decision via email, the NCSA Board liaison shall notify the NCSA Chair and Vice Chair of the Board's decision, the rationale behind the decision, and, if necessary, a timeline documenting implementation.

Documenting of Resolutions

NCRA Staff Liaison shall maintain in perpetuity a listing of all resolutions, approved or not approved. Such listing shall be included in the NCSA Leadership Team's Tool Box.

VII. Notification

Delegates shall be informed of submitted resolutions through NCRA's affiliated unit leadership listserv and this shall satisfy any guidelines for dispersing information to NCSA members, delegates, or the NCRA board.

VIII. NCSA Leadership Team

Composition

The NCSA Leadership Team shall be composed of the NCSA Chair, NCSA Vice Chair, and a minimum of four (4) Leadership Team members. The NCSA Leadership Team members shall be chosen by the Board of Directors. NCSA Delegates may nominate an NCRA member in good standing for the NCSA Leadership Team. The NCRA Executive Director shall appoint an NCRA Staff Liaison to NCSA.

Each NCSA Leadership Team member shall be appointed by the President with approval by the NCRA Board of Directors and shall each serve for one-year (1) term with the option to serve a second term upon appointment by the President and approval by the NCRA Board of Directors.

Duties and Responsibilities

The duties of the NCSA Leadership Team shall be:

- To fulfill their charges as approved by the NCRA Board of Directors;
- To facilitate meaningful and productive discussions in the interest of all matters related to the verbatim stenographic reporting and captioning professions;
- To respond to NCRA member requests and provide a direct link between the affiliated units represented and the NCSA body;
- To recommend to the NCSA body an appropriate course of action on matters which have been placed before it, including evaluating and making recommendations to the NCSA body on all resolutions which it has received from the affiliated units, using the best information and advice available, and making its decision in the best interests of the verbatim stenographic reporting and captioning professions;
- To assist the NCSA Chair and Vice Chair to develop NCSA-sponsored programs and/or meetings throughout the year;
- To attend any meetings called by NCSA if requested to do so by the NCSA Chair and/or Vice Chair and to perform any other duties assigned by the NCSA Chair and/or Vice Chair.

The NCSA Leadership Team must act within the NCSA Guidelines and within the framework of NCRA's Constitution and Bylaws. It may call upon the NCRA Board of Directors, NCRA committee and task force members, and members of NCRA staff when it desires to gain information necessary to fulfill its duties.

Based on conversations with affiliated units, the NCSA Leadership Team may advise the NCRA Board of Directors as to a desired action which would benefit NCRA members, affiliated units and/or the court reporting and captioning professions as a whole.

IX. Listservs

The NCSA Leadership Team shall supervise email lists and other means of communication as directed by the NCRA President. In order to be a part of any email list associated with NCSA, the individual shall be a Registered or Participating Member of NCRA in good standing. Exceptions may be made by the NCRA President, in consultation with the NCSA Chair, where an affiliated unit accepts as members court reporters and captioners who would be ineligible for NCRA membership, and such a member is an officer of the affiliated unit and is a member in good standing of the affiliated unit. All email list participants shall be familiar with and abide by the "NCRA Guidelines for Listservs."

Criteria for Considering Applications for Affiliation in States Where Multiple Affiliated Units are Permissible

1. The subject affiliate has its focus on, and draws membership from, a statewide basis. Applicants from a smaller regional or specialized focus would not fit the meaning or spirit of "state associations" as currently defined in the NCRA Bylaws.
2. The subject affiliate opens its membership to all verbatim stenographic reporters*. The spirit of affiliation of "state associations" would inherently be inclusive to all stenographic reporters within a state.
3. The subject affiliate must offer an educational opportunity at least once per year for its members to earn NCRA CEUs. This helps present an applicant as an engaged participant consistent with the purposes and goals of NCRA.
4. The subject affiliate must be current in its standing as an entity with the applicable state agency. The subject affiliate should be, and remain, a viable association and legitimate entity.

*Some associations offer membership to reporters outside the association's area of specialty only on a nonvoting (e.g., associate) basis. No distinction between voting or other membership is made under this criteria, although the NCRA Board is discomfited with the notion that an affiliate can be discriminatory in its membership with regard to stenographic reporters.

Partnerships with Affiliated Units

NCRA will not enter into any contractual risk and/or revenue-sharing partnerships with a state affiliate for any NCRA major meetings. However, NCRA may provide the host affiliate(s) space outside of the exhibit hall for display and informational purposes.

Services Available to Affiliated and Non-Affiliated Units from NCRA

NCRA's Constitution and Bylaws currently directs that NCRA can only recognize one affiliated unit in each state with limited exceptions (see Article XVI, Section 3a). However, affiliation does not restrict NCRA from providing key benefits to other statewide and local associations. The following list explains the many benefits and services that are available to state and local reporting associations. Services or benefits that differ for a nonaffiliated association compared to an affiliated association are designated with an asterisk.

1. Representation on National Congress of State Associations (NCSA)
Each affiliated unit may appoint two delegates and two alternates to NCSA. Each affiliated unit may have no more than two votes on NCSA. In addition, delegates-at-large who represent states that are not affiliated, with a voice but no vote, may be appointed by the President to serve on NCSA. The NCRA Constitution and Bylaws govern these terms.
2. Participation in NCRA's directors and officers professional liability insurance policy
Affiliated associations are provided with voluntary participation, contingent upon paying an annual premium. All participating affiliate units are covered under a single policy, subject to a limitation of $1,000,000 in coverage per claim and $3,000,000 annual aggregate. The deductible is $2,500 per claim.
3. Listing on NCRA website and publications
A listing on the "Reporter Associations" section of NCRA's website is available to all statewide reporting associations upon request. Affiliated units are clearly distinguished from nonaffiliated units.
State organizations are encouraged to include complete listings of regional, county and other reporting organizations within their state, so new or potential members browsing through the national listings to a state website will have access to this information.
Annual meetings of both affiliated and nonaffiliated units may be listed on NCRA's website interactive meetings calendar.
4. JCR advertising
All reporting organizations may advertise in the magazine, as long as they adhere to NCRA's Advertising Policy. Discounts are available based on multiple-issue commitments.
5. Member prospect lists
Prospect lists are shared with individual state associations on a reciprocal basis. Lists are distributed in an Excel format with name and address.
6. Access to NCRA staff experts
Assistance and support are provided to individual members (regardless of state membership) and affiliated groups, primarily via telephone and e-mail, on such issues as association law, lobbying, statistics, publishing, ethics, etc.
7. Tabletop exhibit at major NCRA meetings, when held in association's state
Depending upon the available space, statewide organizations will be provided with a single table. NCRA has discretion as to where the tabletop will be placed.
8. NCRA representatives at state conferences
Both affiliated and nonaffiliated groups may request an NCRA representative for a conference, based on scheduling and availability; however, all requests cannot always be accommodated.

SECTION 10: OTHER

There are no policies at this time which fall under Other.

SECTION 11: POSITION STATEMENTS

Attorney Responsibility for the Court Reporting Fees

NCRA advocates that attorneys are liable for court reporting fees unless they expressly disclaim liability in advance. This policy conforms with the modified agency rule adopted in the majority of states with respect to court reporting fees that takes into account custom and usage and modern litigation practices in which attorneys, rather than their clients, handle and maintain control over all aspects of litigation, including hiring the court reporter and other expert services.

Communication Access Realtime Translation (CART)

Providing Quality CART Services

NCRA has, since its inception, advocated the highest standards possible with regard to professionalism, continuing education, and certifications to ensure that clients and consumers receive the services they need from skilled and knowledgeable practitioners. NCRA will continue to advocate this position well into the future in order to ensure the integrity of the profession and protect those individuals who depend on the services that only a qualified captioner can offer. Therefore, the goal of all captioners is to provide the highest quality CART possible, taking into account NCRA's Guidelines for Professional Practice, which state: "Accept assignments using discretion with regard to skill, setting, and the consumers involved, and accurately represent the provider's qualifications for CART."

NCRA strongly believes that only qualified captioners should offer communication access services to ensure that consumers receive the level of service required by the Americans with Disabilities Act. If a qualified captioner is not available locally, then remote CART should be considered, again with the primary goal of ensuring that a qualified provider is identified who can meet the communication access needs of the consumer or group. Students should not provide CART services, as poor service has a negative effect on the profession and, more importantly, on the consumer.

High-speed students should only provide CART captioning services under the tutelage of a trainer or through an established internship program. Students should not offer their services until they've graduated from or successfully completed a court reporting program and have had specialized training in providing CART services.

NCRA recognizes that in certain situations an internship may not be possible or a qualified CART captioner may not be available to provide the necessary services. In such instances, neither students nor schools are to be compensated for CART services.

Misidentification of CART Services

NCRA believes that all individuals in need of communication access services should have the right to select what method will best meet their needs. Communication Access Realtime Translation or realtime captioning, as performed by a realtime reporter, offers the only current method for providing verbatim, immediate voice-to-text translation for those people requiring communication access. Some operators of non-verbatim note-taking methodologies have begun to describe their services as CART. This mischaracterization confuses the services offered and endangers the consumer's ability to receive the service, not only requested but required, for full and effective communication access. Moreover, this flagrant misidentification of the services that an individual can legitimately provide is a clear violation of the trust of those individuals in need of communication access assistance. Therefore, NCRA believes that only those individuals who can provide a verbatim, immediate voice-to-text translation can legitimately describe themselves as Communication Access Realtime Translation (CART) providers or realtime captioners.

Ensuring the Confidentiality and Security of Outsourced Transcription

NCRA supports effective and reasonable law, regulation and standards that protect the accuracy, privacy and security of legal and medical transcription work.

The practice of outsourcing the transcription of court and medical information is growing, driven by the desire for increased productivity and economy. As ‘guardians of the record,’ NCRA members and the court reporting profession as a whole have traditionally and historically placed the highest value on the accuracy, impartiality, security and confidentiality of the records they are creating. While recognizing the need for efficiency and the client’s legitimate desire to manage costs, ensuring the confidentiality and security of the information contained in the records that court reporters and health professionals create remains a fundamental and inviolable obligation. Whenever, during the process of creating the record, the work in progress leaves the custody and control of the court reporter him- or herself, the accountability for the security and confidentiality of its contents and compliance with all applicable laws in the jurisdiction pass with it to the scopist, proofreader, transcriptionist, production facility, or whomever. In particular, once content has gone outside the borders of the United States and is being prepared by individuals overseas, concerns are raised as to whether the same level of security that Americans are afforded domestically will be provided abroad to protect that confidential information.

NCRA notes that various jurisdictions already have laws or regulations in place to regulate, restrict or even prohibit the outsourcing of judicial transcriptions. NCRA supports full compliance with and effective enforcement of such statutes and the creation of additional law, regulation or standards that effectively and reasonably ensure the security of confidential judicial records.

Third-Party Contracting

Disclosure Obligations

1. A court reporter shall always disclose to all parties present at a deposition the existence of any direct or indirect contracting relationship with any attorney or party to the case, so that the other parties may exercise their rights under Rules 28(c), 29 and 32(d)(2) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, and comparable state and local laws, to object to the taking of the deposition because of the possible disqualification of the court reporter. This disclosure shall include the identity of all principals and agents involved in the contracting group as well as a description of all services being performed by such court reporter, his or her employer, or any principal or agent of the contracting group. It is the court reporter's obligation to make reasonable inquiries and ascertain this information before accepting any assignment.
2. A court reporter shall always offer to provide comparable services to all parties in a case. However, nothing in this policy is intended to allow court reporters to directly or indirectly exchange information with competitors about the prices they charge, or to discourage in any other way competition in the services offered or prices charged by court reporters.
3. A court reporter shall not, in act or appearance, indicate that the court reporter is participating as part of an advocacy support team for any one of the parties.
4. A court reporter shall always comply with federal, state and local laws and rules that govern the conduct of court reporters (such as those that deal with certification, confidentiality and custody of transcripts, and contracting).

Policy in Support of Enactment of Anti-contracting Laws or Regulations

Whereas, NCRA has long been concerned with the practice under which court reporters enter into contracts for court reporting services. The basis of this concern arises from ethical rules and laws that require reporters to maintain impartiality and independence in their capacity as officers of the court.

Whereas, in 1995, after review by the United States Department of Justice, NCRA issued a Contracting Disclosure Policy. This Contracting Disclosure Policy requires a court reporter to disclose to all parties present at a deposition the existence of any direct or indirect contracting relationship with any attorney or party to the case. The Contracting Disclosure Policy also requires a court reporter to offer comparable services to all parties in a case and prohibits a court reporter from acting or appearing to act in any proceeding on behalf of any one of the parties.

Whereas, NCRA also has issued several Advisory Opinions which address aspects of certain contracting arrangements under NCRA's Code of Professional Ethics.

Whereas, NCRA's members and affiliated organizations increasingly have expressed their concern about contracting and have contacted NCRA to request information and assistance on methods and means by which they can access legislatures and governmental rule-making bodies in order to lobby for legislation, regulations and/or rules to limit or prohibit contracting arrangements.

Whereas, a number of states have enacted or are considering laws or court rules that limit or prohibit contracting arrangements, or require full disclosure to all parties of the existence of such contracting arrangements.

Whereas, NCRA believes that such laws and court rules are the best way to address the ethical and legal problems raised by contracting arrangements.

Now, therefore, it is MOVED, seconded and carried that NCRA lobby at the state and federal level and work with its affiliated organizations and coalitions at the state level to seek the enactment of laws and court rules that will limit or prohibit contracting arrangements in order to maintain the impartiality and independence of court reporters in their capacity as officers of the court.

NCRA will refrain from providing public testimony.

Affirming the Role of and Need for the Official Reporter

Budget crises in many of the nation's courts have increased the pressure to reduce the number of qualified reporters or replace them with alternative record-making methodologies. Put simply: in times of economic challenge, concerns over funding often take precedence over concerns regarding the quality and accuracy of the record.

NCRA believes that adopting such a limited perspective risks not only the production of an accurate, complete, and secure record of the proceeding, but also the efficient functioning of the judicial process and access to the courts for American citizens. Therefore, decisions regarding the best method for making the record must be based on the court's larger goals and customer needs.

Court reporters are experts at gathering information and preserving it in formats that are quickly accessible and readily usable. They have played a critical role in bringing state-of-the-art technology into the courtroom. Clearly, realtime computer technology when applied by a highly trained and skilled individual enhances the value of the record. These 'Guardians of the Record' offer the only method for immediate voice-to-text translation via realtime technology, thereby providing counsel and the judge with instant access to the transcript during the proceedings and ensuring a faster and more efficient judicial process. The same technology provides greater access to the justice system for the more than 28 million U.S. citizens who are deaf or hard of hearing. Having the transcript immediately available in digital form puts key information where it is needed, when it is needed. As a result, the role of the official court reporter has changed from making a record for appellate review to managing a multipurpose system that provides online data for lawyers and other legal professionals.

NCRA advocates that realtime court reporters offer the best, most accurate, most efficient means (human or technological) and best proven and most widely available method for reliably and instantly capturing and integrating the spoken word into a comprehensive and accurate information base. This capability is critical to the swift, fair, and accurate operation of justice. Therefore, the nation's courts should take every opportunity to make use of the skills and services that only a realtime court reporter can offer to the judicial system.

Transcript Repositories

The National Court Reporters Association (NCRA) is well aware of the growing number of online transcript repositories. These Internet sites market themselves as a way for attorneys, and in fact the general public, to obtain and read transcripts from proceedings other than those with which the attorney is involved. Many of these online repositories offer attorneys access to the transcripts for free or at a reduced rate in exchange for attorneys submitting to the repository copies of transcripts the attorneys have purchased in the course of their practice.

These repositories are distinct from websites sites operated by state and federal courts through which parties in interest or the public can access copies of court documents. The court-operated website only contain public documents, in that they have been filed with a court, and therefore the parties have no expectation of privacy. Furthermore, in most instances the courts have redacted private and confidential information from these documents.

NCRA is concerned about these private online repositories for several reasons. First, NCRA members are prohibited from selling copies of transcripts that are not public record (e.g., deposition transcripts that have not been filed with a court) to persons unrelated to the proceeding without first obtaining permission from the parties and the deponent. Reporters are entrusted by the parties to keep information secure and cannot violate that ethical duty without explicit permission to do so. The parties and witnesses have the expectation that the information will be kept secure by the reporter. Ignoring such a safeguard places private information at risk, potentially allowing anyone to make use of the data for inappropriate and/or illegal uses via these repositories.

Additionally, when a transcript contains private information, such as social security numbers and names of minor children, many courts have implemented a procedure whereby the parties instruct the reporter before the transcript is filed in court to redact that private information. If an attorney submits a transcript to a transcript repository that hasn't gone through that redacting procedure, there is risk of great harm to the involved parties with the release of that personal and confidential information.

Court reporters have long been vexed by the issue of attorneys sharing transcript copies with fellow attorneys on the same case, as reporters rely on transcript copy sales as part of their income. Moreover, as federal and most state laws identify, reporters have the right to be fairly compensated for production and distribution of the transcript.

However, the issue of compensation pales in comparison to the dangers associated with the unauthorized and unregulated posting of transcripts containing private and confidential information to the Internet via online repositories.

For these reasons, NCRA believes that such distribution via online repositories should be prohibited unless the following guarantees are offered:

1. Private and confidential information as identified by current federal guidelines has been redacted from the transcript.
2. Only those transcripts that have been made part of the public record, either through filing with a court or through the permission of the parties and the deponents, are posted online.
3. The posting party has confirmed that such a practice does not violate local rules and regulations governing the terms and restrictions on the distribution of transcripts.

NCRA Statement re Electronic Filing of Court Documents and Transcripts

Electronic access to court records is an issue that court reporters have managed for years. As guardians of the record, judicial reporters have the task of maintaining the accuracy and ensuring the security of the official court transcript. Moreover, adhering to the instructions of the court, official reporters manage much of the information distributed to the public. The parties involved often painstakingly scrutinize these documents, and copies are also demanded by legions of journalists and often hotly pursued by members of the public, the legal community, and even collectors.

The National Court Reporters Association (NCRA) applauds current efforts on the federal and state level to allow for electronic access to court records and looks forward to the role court reporters can play in facilitating the process. The value court reporters bring to the court system is to provide litigants and participants with accurate, detailed information about the trial in a way that is quick, convenient, and cost-effective. The reporter's computer-based transcripts are a natural fit for today's web-based court document management systems.

Nevertheless, there are many issues that must be addressed when considering the adoption or implementation of electronic filing as a way to enhance the efficiency of the judicial system and provide public access to court documents.

NCRA believes that ensuring the public's right to access court records must be balanced against the right to privacy of the parties and public safety. Before an e-filing system is implemented, there must be a process in place to ensure that key information, such as that identified in the United States Judicial Conference's policy on redaction, is excluded from the publicly accessible document. Moreover, it should be the responsibility of the parties and/or attorneys to identify the information to be redacted, and the responsibility of the court reporter to redact that information from a transcript.

Ensuring the security of the information once filed electronically is also of paramount concern. First, only a certified transcript should be incorporated into an e-filing system. Second, with continuing advances in technology and the ability of outsiders to gain illegal access to protected computer systems, the entity facilitating e-filing access must provide a method to ensure that a certified transcript cannot be altered once it is accessed electronically and that any attempt to alter an electronic document can be easily identified.

In addition, the court's compensation system must take into account the fact that individuals who wish to obtain a copy of the transcript will no longer be required to go through the reporter, but are now able to obtain the copy electronically. Most official reporter compensation systems are based on the expectation that the reporters' compensation package includes transcript original and copy sales, as those transcripts are produced with reporter-owned equipment and supplies, often outside of standard work hours. Therefore, NCRA believes that a reporter must either be paid for copies of transcripts accessed through the e-filing system or otherwise compensated for copy sale income lost as a result of electronic filing of transcripts.

Certified Legal Video Specialist

NCRA strongly recommends the use of a Certified Legal Video Specialist (CLVS) to ensure the integrity of both the videotaped legal proceedings and the utilization of the electronically recorded media. A CLVS has been trained on the professional standards, ethics, and responsibilities of creating and maintaining the record.

Anonymous Communications

The National Court Reporters Association (NCRA) has set forth a code of conduct and response policy in the management of Internet and social media "trolls" - individuals who make false statements, forge complaints, or threaten individual members, leaders, or staff using Internet platforms or by posting website comments or engaging on social media.

NCRA will not engage with Internet trolls who use a false name. As anonymous trolling has at its core the goal of generating a response from its target, lack of a response statistically is the best tactic for deflating the activities. Likewise, engaging with anonymous trolls may result in more significant damage to NCRA's members, volunteers, and staff as well as its ability to serve its members.
